

Many young people find it difficult to start building their adult life in a big city; they just can't afford it. A typical 20-something can't buy a home or start a business in the GTA, but they can here. In Perth County, it's absolutely possible for 20-somethings to live the adult life that they aspire

Hitting the right notes

Dustin's life is music.

He loves creating it, teaching it and sharing it.

His passion for music started before he can remember – a classic sign of growing up with musicians and singers for parents.

Wanting to follow in his parents' footsteps and pursue his own musical dream, Dustin moved to Toronto to complete Seneca College's Independent Musician Program.

"I always wanted to open my own music recording studio. After living out west for two years and Toronto for one year, I knew that Mitchell was the perfect place for me to launch my business," explained Dustin. "I've been running my business downtown Mitchell for six years now. It's a cost-effective spot and the clientele is awesome."

"I like the pace of the community; I get so many hours in my days here. West Perth is a place where you can really embrace and enjoy nature. It's easy to reconnect to your roots and grow as a person here." ■
