

"In Perth County, peace and support go hand in hand. It's where I feel truly at home."

A Sense of Support

Growing up in Mitchell and Dublin, Kirsten was surrounded by friends who felt like family. The close-knit community left a lasting impression, even as she moved to Toronto for college and later to Calgary for work. "The bigger cities in Ontario are exciting, but isolating. In a big city, it's easy to feel like just another face in the crowd," she recalls.

After six years out west for work, she felt the pull of home. "My family and friends were all back in Perth County. I missed the sense of belonging, of being around people who truly know and support you."

Now back at Goettler Furniture, she's hands-on in the family business with aspirations to take over one day. "Working in a small town, you're more than just an employee—you're a trusted part of the community."

Now fully engaged in the family business at Goettler Furniture, she's looking forward to the future. "I'm here for good—there's no place I'd rather be," she says with a smile.
