

“When I think of Perth County, I think of Letterkenny. The show is loosely based on Jared Keeso’s hometown of Listowel and I think it sums up life here nicely: we have a lot of fun, we have pride in where we live and we’re humble enough to laugh at ourselves. Living here is a very authentic, small-town Canadian experience. I love it.”

Exciting challenges

Blair has a clear passion for living and working in Perth County.

“Perth County is perfectly located. It is beautiful and rural, but you’re never too far away from a lot of amenities. It’s central to so many other locations. Being able to live in the country and to raise my family on a lot of land is important to me, but I’m not compromising conveniences to do it. I live in Gowanstown, so everything that I need is close by in Listowel, and I can get to large cities in under an hour, which is a big perk.”

He also loves the unique professional opportunities that the area offers him.

“Businesses in Perth County succeed because they service the whole area and beyond. The customers are very loyal and very diverse; we have clients ranging from agriculture granaries to industrial factories. I’ve been an industrial mechanic millwright in the same company for eight years and every single day brings different challenges to work through. It’s always fresh and exciting. I love my job. ” ■
